DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a small, one-story frame church that faces south. The entrance is in the (south) gable facade, and it is covered with a low, one-bay vestibule. The church itself is three bays long, and there are tall, arched, stain-glass windows in each bay. There is a round window in the south gable end. The church sits on a stone foundation, and is sheathed in German siding.

It is not certain whether this was also an early Negro school. Supposedly, there is a one-room schoolhouse in this triangle.

It is not known at this time when the first blacks came to Boyds. It is known that some were here prior to the construction of the railroad as slaves of migrating settlers, more came when the railroad was under construction, and some came down from the Barnesville and Poolesville areas, both are older than Boyds.

John and Maria Duffin -married on May 1, 1850 in Barnesville, Md.-, parents of the late Addison Duffin, and grandparents of Miss Lorraine Duffin and Mrs. Edna Johnson, built the first house on Whitegrounds Road. This log house, still standing, is the home of the late Sophronia Hebron. The Duffin sisters presently reside next door in the house built later by their father, Addison. Some of the other log houses built during that era along Whitegrounds Road and Hoyles Mill Road are still standing but not all are livable.

John and Maria Duffin were employees of Captain James Boyd - Maria worked in the house; John, and later his son, Addison, farmed the acreage now known as Whitegrounds Road. Captain Boyd initially owned 130 acres. He built cabins for his workers, raised cattle, and farmed the remaining acreage. His total acreage was believed to be about 1100 acres.

In July, 1892, one acre of land was purchased from Dorothy and John DeLauder at the sum of $50 for the erection of a church. This was part of the original tract owned by Grace Leapley. St. Marks Methodist Episcopal Church, presently known as St. Marks United Methodist Church, was completed on September 24, 1893. The first trustees, as recorded on the deed, were Addison Duffin, Thomas Jackson, and William Johnson. The pastor, Reverend Benjamin F. Myers, solicited for financial donations from the residents in the area - one of whom was Captain James Boyd. Prior to this, the members worshiped in a one-room building next door which was also used as a school until the Boyds School was built, which is still standing across from the Edward U. Taylor Elementary School. Boyds School was closed in 1936, and students were transported to the two-room school in Clarksburg.

The parsonage was built in 1899 on the same acreage, under the pastorage of Reverend Daniel Wheeler.

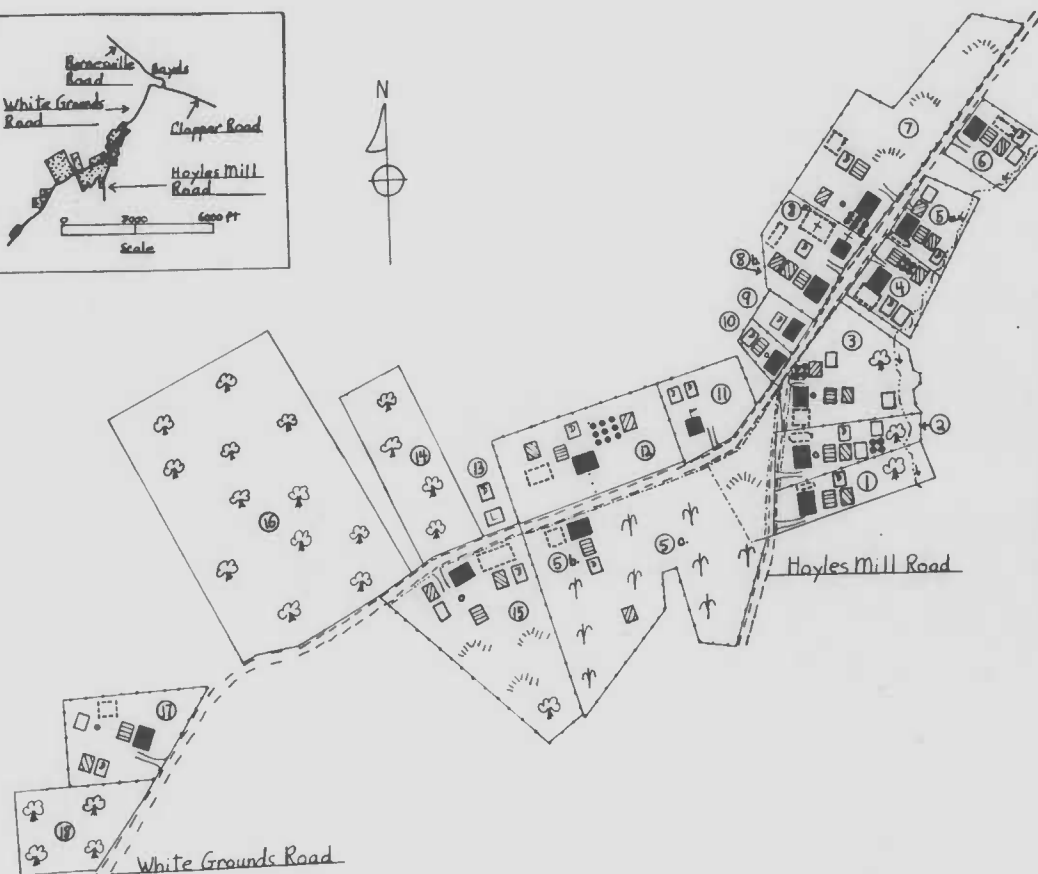

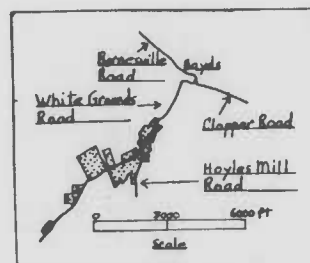

Later additions were the dining hall, stained glass windows, cushioned folding chairs. In 1966, Mr. Glenn W. Shorb, donated one-half acre of land to St. Marks Church, to enable them to "square-off" the back boundaries of the cemetery. In September 1971, a modular, vertical building was donated to St. Marks Church through the YWCA of Montgomery County. This building was later erected to enlarge the dining hall.

The Edward U. Taylor Elementary School began its history in Sept., 1952 under the principalship of Samuel T. Jones. The building of Taylor consolidated seven up-county black communities - Martinsburg, Poolesville, Boyds, Sugarland, Sellman, Hyattstown, and Clarksburg. Students were bused from these communities to the school. The school was named in honor of Edward U. Taylor, the first supervisor of his race in the Montgomery County Public Schools. In September of 1961, the school was desegregated under the principalship of Weeta P. Morris.
